2018 CURIO Symposium

The CLASS Office for Undergraduate Research & Intellectual Opportunities (or CURIO) is pleased to host an evening highlighting the best research and creative endeavors of the college's students at this April's CURIO Symposium. We welcome applications from currently enrolled undergraduate students from all major and minor areas of study in CLASS. Projects from the Spring, Summer, or Fall of 2017 and Spring of 2018 are welcome all eligible. Interdisciplinary project applications are also welcome.

To apply for the Symposium, students should submit a 250-word abstract describing the scholarly or creative activity and the presentation, paper, performance, or poster that will be utilized to showcase the research or creative endeavor. The abstracts should explain how the project represents original student work. The application also requires the listing of a faculty mentor with whom the student worked with on the project. The faculty mentor should help students prepare to deliver their presentation by providing both advice and feedback on their material and physical presentation.

This year, faculty mentors may also submit an application on behalf of students who wish to participate in the Symposium. The abstract should describe the student's research or creative endeavor in detail and explain how the project, paper, performance, or poster represents original student work. Please limit these to 250 words.

All applications should be submitted at http://tinyurl.com/CURIO2018. Applications will be accepted until February 15th, 2018 (please note, students must be logged in to MyApps to access the application page). If selected to participate, students must be physically present at the Symposium to comment on their research, presentation, performance, or poster and to respond to questions from the audience. Selected papers, projects, performances, and posters need be in final draft format or ready to be delivered by April 1, 2018.

Outstanding presentations, performances, and posters in the humanities, fine arts, and social sciences, as determined by judges, will be recognized at the Symposium with a monetary award and a student profile on the CLASS website.

For any questions, please contact Jason Slone (dslone@georgiasouthern.edu).

College of the Creative Mind